The following paragraphs have omitted most –s endings and ‘s endings. Correct the errors.

A kangaroo rat world is the burning hot desert where the air above the sand is so hot it wiggle. During the day, a kangaroo rat sleep in a cool, underground hole where it is safe from the terrible heat. But when the sun go down, the desert cool. Then the rat come out. It scamper about, looking for seed that blow across the desert. The rat doesn’t look for water. Even if there were water, the kangaroo rat wouldn’t drink it. This rat never drink. Its body is able to make the water it need out of just the dry seed the rat eat.

A walrus, on the other hand, live in a world of cold water and floating island of ice. A walrus swim to the edge of an ice island and stick his two, long front teeth, called tusk, into the ice. He pull himself right out of the water with his tusk. Then he lie on the ice in the sunshine, just as people lie on a sandy beach. Thick, tough skin with lots of thick fat underneath help keep the walrus warm.

Difference in each animal body help it stay alive in its world. A kangaroo rat has what it need to stay alive in a hot desert. A walrus has what it need to stay alive in its cold, icy world. Nature has perfectly equipped each animal, and each one has perfectly adapted to its habitat.
Possessives

Ownership is shown by using the possessive form of a noun. Follow the rules below when forming possessives.

Rule 1: When forming the possessive of any singular noun, add ‘s.

Example: a girl’s dress
Chris’s house

Note: Do not use an apostrophe with a possessive pronoun.

Example: its, hers, ours, yours, theirs

Rule 2: When forming the possessive of a plural noun, first make certain the plural form is spelled correctly. If the plural ends in s, add an apostrophe after the s. If the plural does not end in s, add ‘s.

Example: the boys’ team
the children’s playroom

Note: All plural rules can be accessed through Blackboard.

Possessive Pronouns

Possessive pronouns show ownership; however, they do not require apostrophes. The pronouns his, hers, its, ours, yours, theirs, and whose are subject to this rule.

Contractions using pronouns do contain apostrophes. You’re (you are), they’re (they are), we’re (we are), it’s (it is), and who’s (who is) are examples.

Examples:
Whose coat is that?
Who’s standing outside the door.
It’s easy to see why he makes good grades.
The bird built its nest in the tree outside my window.

Exercise: Correct each sentence below by crossing out the incorrect pronoun and writing the correct pronoun above it. Some sentences are correct.

1. Its been so cold this fall that the trees have already shed their leaves.

2. Is the responsibility their’s or your’s?

3. She is the actress who’s chief claim to fame was a series of hair conditioner commercials.

4. The lady whose dog was lost had become hysterical.

5. The chair was in terrible condition; it’s stuffing was coming out, and it had several cigarette burns.

6. The dress is her’s, but the shoes are mine.

7. Who’s at the door?

8. I hope their not planning to come to our house after the reunion.

9. It’s getting late; I think its time for the children to put on their pajamas.

10. I think your in trouble for having too many absences in your English Comp I class.

Another rule for pronouns requires the use of possessive pronouns before a gerund (an -ing verb used as a noun).

Example: I was irritated by his singing in the shower. (Not “him singing”)
She approves of our working together. (Not “us working”)

Correct the sentences below.

1. Him being the nephew of the boss didn’t hurt his chances for the job.
2. She appreciated me tutoring her daughter.
3. The other candidate did not approve of me putting flyers in his dorm.
